Kazunari Matsuyama is Director of Consulting at IHP; responsible for managing IHP's team of specialists and responsible for the planning and execution of programs that ensure sustainable growth at client centers.

Kazunari started his career with Dupont, serving large corporate clients in the electronics industry as an account executive for ten years followed by a six year role at GE Capital both in the US and Japan. After GE, Kazunari was responsible for setting up the captive equipment financing unit of Siemens Medical (Siemens Finance) where he served as Representative Director and focused on small to medium sized enterprises and healthcare service providers. Since 2007 Kazunari applied his multidisciplinary skill set in managing consulting projects at a cardiovascular focused consulting company serving Japanese healthcare providers.

Kazunari received his Bachelor's degree in Science from Kyushu University and earned his MBA from the University of Texas at Austin. Kazunari is fluent in English.
